On Season 5, Artistic Director Matthew Warchus commented:

'One of the things I love about theatre is its almost complete disinterest in trivialities. It feeds off - and feeds back - life's most titanic ideas and emotions. Our next batch of shows at The Old Vic is no exception and delivers five powerful stories in five contrasting genres; a world premiere play, a very topical duologue, a festive celebration, a

20th century classic and a brand new musical. First up is the extraordinary quest for an elusive truth in Lucy Prebble's dark fantasia A Very Expensive Poison, exploring the poisoning of Alexander Litvinenko in 2006. After that, and hot on the heels of the Extinction Rebellion consciousness-raising demonstrations, there's an extremely limited run of Duncan Macmillan's dazzlingly vibrant and profound two-hander, Lungs, which sees a conflicted couple wrestle with huge contemporary dilemmas surrounding the responsibility of bringing new life into an increasingly precarious world. Then there's the race against time to save the soul of greedy misanthrope Ebenezer Scrooge in Jack Thorne's emotional sucker-punch adaptation of Dickens' A Christmas Carol. In January we'll plunge into the absurdist verbal sparring which comprises Samuel Beckett's phenomenal play Endgame (playing for the first time in a double bill with his Rough for Theatre II), where human co-dependency, bathos and malevolence is laid bare in a post-apocalyptic wasteland. And, finally, a poignant (and comic) battle to save the environment in the new Scottish musical Local Hero.

These shows continue our social mission to present productions which entwine empathy, politics and entertainment for as wide an audience as possible. If you've never visited The Old Vic before, or if you haven't been back for a while, come along and check out what we're up to... you'll be surprised how much we've changed'

ENTERTAIN SOMETHING NEW

The Old Vic is unique. An independent, risk-taking, creative producing theatre operating without subsidy that has been reinventing itself for 200 years. At the heart of its local and creative community since its inception in 1818, the theatre has always played a vital part in shaping the theatrical and social landscape of London and beyond.

2019 will see some of the biggest changes the theatre has made, with works already underway to upgrade the building. From the autumn, for the first time ever, all visitors no matter what their access needs will be able to enter the theatre through a new entrance to a new Box Office and foyer space, as well as visit the Penny bar and café on the lower ground floor via a newly-installed lift. Wheelchair spaces in the auditorium will be increased from one to up to 10 and the ladies' loos provision (the biggest customer complaint) will be doubled to address the long-time issue of queues and overcrowding.

The focus is on the positive societal impact The Old Vic can have on the next generation and how it can respond to the needs of people today. The theatre's undeniable commitment to cultural education, social mobility and employability continues this year with the 10th anniversary of Schools Club which has, to date, benefitted over 10,000 young people, the expansion of the landmark employability programme Front Line, and the launch of a free employability programme, Take the Lead, for students aged 16–18.

With an auditorium of 1,000 seats and a (soon-to-be) accessible building, The Old Vic's aim is to be full for the 18 hours a day that it is open. Whether it be to see a show, enjoy a drink with a friend, join a debate or see behind the scenes, we want all people to feel like they can experience something new at The Old Vic. This Season will see the launch of OV Extra, designed to surprise and engage new and existing audiences. For just £5 a month anyone will be able to gain exclusive access to discounted and free tickets, discounts on food, drink and merchandise and a monthly surprise that could range from ticket offers or backstage tours to party invites or meet and greets.

Inspired by recent studies reporting growing numbers of older people feeling lonely or isolated, and The Old Vic's belief in the restorative power of the arts, we are excited to launch Matinee Idols, a new scheme for people over 60. Open to individuals and groups, the scheme is free and offers the opportunity to attend a matinee at low cost and take part in a social event either pre or post show. This could involve a workshop led by one of the production's creative team, a Q&A with someone from the show, a talk with Old Vic staff or a look backstage – all with plenty of opportunities to chat and make new friends.

On her appointment Tina said: 'I am delighted to be joining the Board of this incredible creative force and am particularly passionate about the work to diversify its audience base and its impressive range of education and talent outreach programmes'

MORE AT THE OLD VIC

We are passionate about developing work that supports productions on the main stage and providing audiences with new ways to engage with The Old Vic.

VOICES OFF

Don't just watch theatre. Question it. Explore the themes raised by our main stage productions in our series of talks, debates and Q&As with leading voices in the arts, media, science and politics.

ONE VOICE

What power can one voice have – spread laughter, trigger tears, inspire empathy, provoke change? A series of newly-written monologues, spoken word and song from leading writers and performed by acclaimed actors on our stage – this is theatre in its rawest form. Without scenery, costume, and with nothing to rely on but words, One Voice reminds us what a single voice can do. Specially commissioned by The Old Vic and funded by the TS Eliot Estate.

FAMILIES

At The Old Vic we want your experience here to be enchanting, magical and memorable however old or young you are. Whether it's your first trip or you are a seasoned theatre explorer, we're offering more and more productions and events for everyone to enjoy and spark the imagination.

The Old Vic is an independent, not-for-profit theatre that has been a beacon of creativity and daring during its 200 year life. The Old Vic receives no regular public subsidy and is reliant on box office receipts, philanthropic donations and support from businesses to sustain its work both on and off the stage. That is why working in partnership with companies like RBC and PwC is so vital.

PRINCIPAL PARTNER

ROYAL BANK OF CANADA

Royal Bank of Canada (RBC), one of the largest banks in the world and Canada's largest company and financial institution by market capitalisation, is The Old Vic's Principal Partner. Furthermore, RBC has enhanced their support to become the Principal Partner of The Old Vic's flagship employability programme, Take the Lead, which will give students from 20 state schools and colleges across London the opportunity to participate in a high-quality, creative employability project.
